

Gwen Hanson, MD

Dr. Hanson is a board-certified primary care physician who specializes in family medicine. She trained at the University of South Florida College of Medicine and Western Penn Hospital. She has also served in the US Air Force as a general medical officer. Currently, Dr. Hanson runs her own practice, Rockwood Family Medicine, where she has developed a reputation for her expertise in whole food plant-based diets. Outside of her work, she enjoys sports, playing piano and violin in chamber ensembles and advocating for climate action. She is married and has three children.